

Reservoir Engineering Manager Houston, Texas

Dalton Boggs & Associates is seeking a Reservoir Engineering Manager for an oil and gas company established to acquire, exploit and develop oil and natural gas properties in North America. Current properties are located in South and East Texas and consist of mature, legacy onshore oil and natural gas reservoirs. This company is backed by a $9.5 billion firm that invests across the entire natural resources sector.

The Reservoir Engineer Manager is responsible for the management of the Reservoir Engineering Department, oversight of the evaluation of reservoir performance, reserves risks, and economics of the company's exploitation and exploration projects to increase profitability by increasing oil and gas production and proven reserves, and decrease lifting and development costs. Provides engineering expertise to acquisitions of producing properties and new exploitation ventures. The key areas of focus include the design and implementation of an effective organization that meets budget expectations. Functions include hiring, planning, and implementation for the staff reporting to this position, and ongoing identification and implementation of procedures that provide improved results.

Qualifications include A Bachelor's Degree in Engineering, ten+ years experience in oil and gas reservoir engineering and oil field operations management, strong interpersonal skills and the ability to communicate well with all levels of personnel, excellent written and verbal communication skills, with specific ability to translate complex information into an organized and presentable manner. Proven management and leadership skills. Excellent analytical, organizational, and communication skills.

All inquiries will be held in the strictest of confidence. An extremely competitive compensation, benefits, and relocation package is available.
